

James Stawniczy, AIA, LEED AP, is the National Director of Sustainability for the U.S. at the construction services and general contracting firm, Lend Lease, where he supports projects throughout the country and manages LEED implementation and training.

James was part of the New York City's Task Force created to advise on future changes to municipal codes that would shrink the city's carbon footprint and improve public and environmental health. Board Memberships and Affiliations includes Adjunct Lecturer - Sustainability New York University, Adjunct Lecturer- Construction Documents, New York University, Cost Committee, Urban Green Council, CM Education Committee, Urban Green Council, Architect, American Institute of Architects.

Education: Bachelor of Architecture, Architecture - Pratt Institute. Certifications: Architect, NYS Board of Professions, LEED AP USGBC.

---